REPORTED SEA FIGHT.

The London Daily Telegraph this morning publishes a dispatch from Tokio, dated March 7 and says:

"It is reported that the Japanese fleet engaged the Russian Vladivostok squadron at sea yesterday. The result of the engagement is not announced, but it is believed the Russian ships were destroyed or captured."

The whereabouts of Captain Reitzenstein's Vladivostok squadron is carefully guarded by the military authorities at St. Petersburg, but there is a strong impression that when the seven Japanese warships appeared on the harbor Sunday and Monday the Russian squadron was outside, perhaps down the coast, co-operating with the Russian land force near the mouth of the Tumen river.

If the Russians were outside and the Japanese definitely ascertained that fact a big sea fight is probably imminent, as it is considered certain that the Japanese in that case will lie on and off Vladivostok to prevent the return of the Russians, giving battle if they are caught in the open sea. All the harbors along the coast in which the Russians might seek refuge are frozen and the squadron must eventually be forced to return to Vladivostok for coal.

Although the Japanese squadron is superior in numbers and guns, consisting of a battleship and four armored cruisers, two of which are believed to be the Idzumo and the Yakumo, and two unarmored cruisers, the four armored cruisers under Captain Reitzenstein, the Ros Grombi, Rurik and Bogatyr, are among the finest vessels in the Russian navy, constituting as sister ships a homogeneous fighting unit, and experts in St. Petersburg are not certain that they could not take the measure of Rear Admiral Uriu's ships.

A naval service organ at St. Petersburg argues lengthily that the present Japanese naval disposition presages a movement on a large scale in the Sea of Japan and the paper accounts for all the Japanese ships except the battleship Yamashiro and the armored cruiser Tokiwa, one first-class protected cruiser and five second-class, reckoning the battleships Fuji and Shikishima, the armored cruisers Iwate and Asama and the protected cruiser Takashimo as being injured.

Damage by Floods.
Floods along the Susquehanna, the Delaware, the Schuylkill and other rivers have caused great damage to property and suffering among the residents of towns along the raging rivers the last 24 hours.

From Lancaster and Harrisburg, Pa., to Port Deposit and Havre de Grace, Md., at the mouth of the Susquehanna, every town has suffered more or less damage. The vast ice fields and gorges have broken up at Port Deposit and other points, but the great river is still filled with huge masses of ice in the vicinity of Havre de Grace. At a late hour last night the river was up nearly to the track level of the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge at that place, and the lower portions of the town were flooded. The cable beneath the floor of the bridge, containing the railroad telegraph wires, was cut and swept away by the rushing ice and water, as were also all the yachts and fishing craft along the Havre de Grace waterfront.

The electric power plant at York Haven, the most elaborate of all the schemes to "harness" the Susquehanna river, which was intended to supply York, Harrisburg, Columbia and other places with electricity, has been destroyed. The plant was situated on an island in the river, and is said to have cost $1,500,000. It was almost ready to open, and a movement was on foot to increase the capital stock of the company owning it to $3,500,000. It was proposed to utilize the falls at Conowingo, and a protective wall 35 feet high was constructed. This wall, it was believed, would give full protection to the plant, which was supposed to be safe from the biggest flood. The ice badly damaged the plant several days ago, and yesterday the flood added to the destruction. The Pennsylvania and other railroad companies have lost heavily in warehouses and the destruction of bridges.

Cannot Pass Dardanelles.
The Porte has thus far met the requests of the Russian ambassador to Turkey, M. Zinovief, to permit the Black Sea fleet to pass the Dardanelles by naming conditions wholly unacceptable by Russia. One of these conditions is that Russia shall break or evade the fulfillment of her commitments with Austria respecting the garrisons, give the Sultan leave to set controversy by his own methods, and Turkey should Austria's powers dispute the Sultan's Russia rejected these proposals, but she renewed.

to which there seems little likelihood of the ship yielding, as British diplomacy is active at Constantinople in urging on the Porte a strict observance of the Berlin treaty. France, so far as can be perceived in Berlin, has not seconded Russia in this matter. Such a step as permitting the Black Sea fleet to pass the Dardanelles would be regarded diplomatically as a breach of neutrality on the part of Turkey.
